LITERARY WORK IN LOCAL HIGH SCHOOL

FIRST OF SERIES OF FRIDAY AFTERNOON ENTERTAINMENTS IS HELD

The first of a series of Friday afternoon literary entertainments in the high school was held last Friday and was a most enjoyable variation of the usual routine. This series is the outcome of the interest aroused by a debate held recently in the economics class. After that a vote was taken in the assembly room to learn how many favored Friday programs and how many would volunteer to help. The response was practically unanimous. The program yesterday was placed entirely in the hands of a student committee appointed by the principal. The committee was Kyle Lutz, chairman, Joe Murphy, Leona Carey, Helen Davis, there being one member from each class. The numbers were: "Abbie's Accounts," reading, by Claire Laurance; "Honest Deacon," declamation, William Cuddy; Jewish Monologue, Denham Cox; "The Steerage of Today," reading, Inez O'Connell; "When Pa Was a Boy," reading, Madeline Wilson. There were also some pleasing selections by a large victrola. State Superintendent Bray, who had been inspecting the schools, was also present, and in response to an invitation from the chairman made a short speech.
